

APS March Meeting in Hong Kong 2025

Conference Notice

Dear Colleagues in the Physics Community:

Since the outbreak of the pandemic, academic exchanges between Chinese and American physicists have encountered unprecedented difficulties. As a result, Physical Society of Hong Kong and American Physical Society have agreed to hold a satellite conference in Hong Kong concurrently with the 2025 American Physical Society March Annual Meeting, from March 16th to 22nd, 2025. Academic presentations made at the Hong Kong venue can be broadcasted live to the American Physical Society's March Annual Meeting online platform, and participants can also watch presentations on the American Physical Society's online platform. We believe that in the current situation where some researchers are unable to attend the meeting in the United States due to visa issues, our conference will provide them with a valuable platform to showcase their research achievements and engage in academic exchanges with international collaborators.
